

BILL GIVES WILSON POWER OF SEIZURE

Expected Provision Would Give President Right to Commandeer Shipyards.

LIMITED TO MARCH 1, 1918

Padgett Amendment Provides for Condemnation of Patents on War Aeroplanes.

It became practically certain today that when the naval appropriation bill leaves the House it will contain a provision authorizing the President to commandeer shipyards and munitions factories in time of war "or national emergency."

The House Rules Committee reversed its position late yesterday and voted to grant a special rule making Administration amendments to the bill giving the President such authority in order.

Friday the Rules Committee voted down these amendments, proposed by Chairman Padgett, of the Naval Affairs Committee.

Daniels at Capitol.
Secretary Daniels went to the Capitol yesterday afternoon and conferred with members of the Rules Committee. The pressure of the Administration in the present emergency was brought to bear and the committee voted to report the desired rule on Monday. The naval bill will go to a vote Tuesday.

The amendments were modified to provide that the President shall have power to commandeer only until March 1, 1918. This change was made on the assumption that such authority will not be required beyond that time.

When the Rules Committee first rejected the plea for a rule it was said the committee did not regard such radical action as imperative at this time, and there was also involved a conflict of committee jurisdiction.

The rule agreed upon by the Rules Committee gives the President sweeping power in this respect but does not provide for any appropriation for rushing to completion such vessels as may be needed by the navy.

The Naval Affairs Committee asked for an emergency appropriation of $150,000,000, to be made up by the sale of 3 per cent bonds, but the Rules Committee decided that this particular legislation should go to the Ways and Means Committee.

The Padgett amendments, as modified by the Rules Committee, will provide:

That the President force all private shipyard and other factories capable of making war materials to give preferential consideration to orders placed by the United States during a period of war or national emergency.

That the President shall also have authority to commandeer such establishments and operate them in supplying vessels and war materials for the United States.

Get Aeroplane Patents.
That the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy shall acquire by purchase, condemnation, donation or otherwise, the basic patents on an aeroplane to be used for military purposes.

That all factories taken over by the Government under the authority given the President shall be entitled to receive a fair rental or award of damages from the United States on account of the uses to which the establishment may have been put by the United States Government.

The Rules Committee struck out the provision that all legislation relating to hours of labor of employees in such establishments shall be waived under Government operation. The following substitute provision was inserted:

Eight Hours Standard Day.

"That eight hours shall be a standard day for all Government employees (when employed on work in connection with such ships or war material) and time and a half for all time over eight hours in any one day."

The Rules Committee retained in the amendment the clause making it unlawful for any person to incite workers on such contracts to leave their employment or strike.

The $150,000,000 appropriation, to be given to the President "to secure the more expeditious delivery of materials, equipment, and munitions, and secure the more expeditious construction of ships," was eliminated.

Blanket Authority.

Inasmuch as this appropriation carried with it authority for a bond issue, members of the Rules Committee held that it came properly within the jurisdiction of the Ways and Means Committee, and should not be written into the naval bill in irregular fashion. It is realized that if it becomes necessary for the President to commandeer shipyards under the express authority of Congress, the legislative branch of necessity must pay the bills arising under such a process. Secretary Daniels is understood to have told the committee that the Administration desired the authority to commandeer shipyards, but that the appropriation was not so essential at this time. The blanket authority which it is proposed to give the President will meet any present or prospective emergency, it is believed.

The special rule will be presented to the House before the naval bill is put on final passage in the House on Tuesday. Republican members of the Rules Committee are understood to have agreed not to fight the rule on the floor as the issue presented is not a partisan one.

Admiral Fiske Declares George Washington Wouldn't Recognize Country.

much an advantage over ours as our forefathers, armed with guns, had over the North American Indian, armed with bows and arrows.

Diverted from Defense.
"The principal cause of military and naval backwardness is that ever since our civil war, which closed fifty years ago, a period of peace has continued which was broken for a short time only by the events of the Spanish war. The result has been that the brain power of the country as a whole has been diverted from military affairs to a degree beyond that which is safe; to a degree like that in which it was diverted in every wealthy nation in history, shortly before that nation fell."

"It was so diverted from military affairs in Assyria, Egypt, the cities of Greece, and in Rome; it was diverted from naval affairs in Holland before Holland succumbed to Great Britain; it was so diverted in France, and devoted to the pleasures that made Paris the mistress of fashion, before the armies of France went down like tin soldiers before the real soldiers of Prussia in 1870."

Moral, Not Mental.
"The cause of the diverting of attention and effort from military things is not mental so much as moral; not folly so much as effeminacy."

"It is because of a natural yielding to the pleasures of the senses and the appetites; to the pleasures of soft living, of the pleasures of the automobile; to the pleasures of idleness, of soft music, silk stockings, and kid gloves; to fashionable society, golf, and French novels; in a word, to luxury."

"Yet it is at bottom the pursuit of luxury, and the resulting strife for foreign trade, that has been the principal cause of modern wars."

Nation Is Effeminized.
"The nation has become effeminized. George Washington would not know us, and General Grant would be shocked to see the difference in manner and carriage between the young men of today and the young men that marched behind him only fifty years ago. They would be amazed to see how Uncle Sam, who typifies our nation in the pictures, has become effeminized, and they would realize that, although his garb is still of masculine cut, yet that the kind of bravery they have shown in letting the country drift along undetended as they have done in this warlike world, reminds me of a remark made by the late Rear Admiral Bradford some years ago, while I was taking him over the Atlanta, then the pride of the navy. When I showed him the conning tower, I remarked that some captains declared they would not go into the conning tower in battle. Bradford answered: 'The captain who wouldn't go into the conning tower in battle would be very brave, but he'd be a damn fool.'"

Women As Brave As Men.
"This does not impugn the courage of our people, because women are as brave as men, and because, our people are brave. In fact, they may be too brave, like the Barbadian boy, the kind of bravery they have shown in letting the country drift along undetended as they have done in this warlike world, reminds me of a remark made by the late Rear Admiral Bradford some years ago, while I was taking him over the Atlanta, then the pride of the navy. When I showed him the conning tower, I remarked that some captains declared they would not go into the conning tower in battle. Bradford answered: 'The captain who wouldn't go into the conning tower in battle would be very brave, but he'd be a damn fool.'"

MISTRESS MASONS MEET

Of course, there were also twelve real Masons who held the pass words, but that was all they held for they tendered the banquet to their wives, and the wives ran things after their own Masonic ritual.

Following the banquet it was simply, yet authoritatively announced, that none of the gentlemen would be heard from.

In their places the toastmistress called upon the following for addresses: Mrs. James Witter, Mrs. Len Towers, Jr., Mrs. Joseph H. Milans, Mrs. J. Harry Cunningham, Mrs. Thomas H. Young, Mrs. Hugh T. Stevenson, Mrs. Charles J. O'Neill, Mrs. Charles F. Roberts, Mrs. Roe Pulkerson, Mrs. Sydney R. Jacobs, and Mrs. Ezekiel J. Ayers.

$100 STOLEN FROM SAFE

Two Negroes Arrested on Suspicion. Held Pending Investigation.

The safe in the dyeing and cleaning establishment of Anton Fischer, 906 G street northwest, was looted last night of $100 in cash.

The robbery was discovered shortly after 8 o'clock by a night watchman, who found the side door of the place, which opens on an alley, unlocked.

Police were called and they found the safe open. The small drawers in the safe had been broken and the contents taken, there being no signs of force having been used on the big outer door. Detectives Vermillion and Grant, of headquarters, and Gullfoyle and Howes, of the First precinct, started out on the case, and early this morning arrested two negroes, one a former employee of the place, on suspicion. They are being held at the First precinct while the detectives make an investigation of their whereabouts last night.

URGES CHANGES IN NEW SERVICE PLAN

Report Baker Has Returned Universal Training Proposal to General Staff.

Secretary Baker has returned to the general staff for radical changes the universal service and emergency army proposals prepared and submitted to him to be sent to Congress, according to information received today from a reliable source.

The proposal involves a regular or professional army of 500,000 men of all branches, and the training of 800,000 men annually through the requirements of universal service. A one-year period of training is called for.

For 1,400,000 Trained Men.
The regular army under the general staff plan embrace 174 regiments of infantry, 55 regiments of cavalry, 70 or more regiments of field artillery, and other troops to bring the total up to 500,000 officers and men.

The operations of this plan, it is pointed out, would furnish 400,000 trained men at the end of one year, making possible an expeditionary force of 1,000,000 men, with the nucleus around which to build up a second line or defensive army.

Would Lack His Support.
Secretary Baker is said to have told the general staff that he would not transmit such a bill to Congress with his support; that material reductions must be made both in the size of the proposed professional army and in the period of training recommended for civilians before he would sanction the measure.

As the Secretary's demands are believed to involve a complete revision and remodeling of the plan, it is not believed the general staff will have concluded a new measure before the fate of the Chamberlain universal service bill shall have been pretty accurately measured by its reception in the Senate.

JUAREZ EXPECTS VILLISTA ATTACK

Hostile Forces Reported to Be Moving Toward City—Small Garrison Massacred.

EL PASO, Feb. 11.—Juarez is momentarily expecting an attack from the Villa forces under the personal command of Jose Ynez Salazar.

Bandits of the Villa-Salazar command have been seen within a few miles of the border city and a garrison of Carranza soldiers was massacred not more than fifty miles southwest of Juarez, on the Mexico Northwestern railroad.

Six soldiers of the Guzman garrison, all that remained of sixty-five Carranzistas, commanded by Capt. Santiago Rodriguez, reported that all the rest of the garrison was either killed or so badly wounded that they could not escape.

The work train, with an escort of seventy-five Carranzista soldiers from the Juarez garrison, had reached kilometer 65 when the survivors were found. As Guzman was only eleven miles distant, the train backed up and wired to Juarez for reinforcement.

The story of the Guzman soldiers confirms previous reports of movements northward by Salazar's men. Casas Grandes is supposed to have suffered the same fate as Guzman. Yesterday's press dispatches, carrying a statement from John Hawes, Pancho Villa's New York publicity man, to the effect that Villa has 25,000 men and ample artillery, equipment, and hospital facilities, in preparation for an extensive campaign in northern Chihuahua, attracted considerable comment among men in touch with the Mexican situation.

Hawes gave Villa's artillery strength as thirty guns of 65 and 75 millimeters and seventy-five machine guns. His railroad equipment was estimated at thirty-seven locomotives and seventy box cars and gondolas. His base hospital at Bustillos was said to be provided with fifteen physicians and fifty-six nurses.

Hawes' announcement, however, is contradictory of previous reports received here that Villa has established headquarters at Bustillos. Whether Villa is there himself, or opposing Francisco Murguia at Santa Rosalia is a matter of doubt. Arrivals of trains from Chihuahua City give contrary accounts.

General Murguia has penetrated the Villa forces at Santa Rosalia and has advanced as far south as Busta Mentia. Villa supporters say that he is trying to cut his way through to the south, with the intention of abandoning Chihuahua to Villa.
